INVITATIONS

A handbook for exploring who God is creating you to be from Greenhouse

GREENHOUSE

We use the phrase, “Who God is creating you to be,” a lot in these parts. This handbook is designed to help you start to explore what that might mean for your life. We believe that God has a purpose for your life. We also believe that stepping into that purpose will lead to the best possible life you can live. Your purpose is very likely different than everyone else’s purpose, and there is not a ranking or hierarchy for purposes. If you were created to be a missionary in Africa, then doing that will put you on a path towards the full, meaningful life that Jesus proclaimed he came to bring us. If you were not created to be a missionary in Africa, then doing that will not be the best possible life you can live. So we want to discover who God is creating you to be.

So, we’ve created this book to start to capture who you are, what you’ve been through, what makes you you. There are a lot of questions here. The point isn’t to answer them all, but rather to lean into the questions that seem to spark something as you work through them. Take your time. Approach each question prayerfully. Ask God to stir up the answers you may have forgotten or dismissed. And, as much as you’re able, bring your answers into your community, whether that’s Greenhouse or somewhere else. Claim who God is creating you to be, and let others support and help you into your next steps.

Remember, when we hear the word “calling,” it’s an invitation from God to do the things that will lead to the best possible life right here and right now. This is an invitation to matter. It’s an invitation to live your life to the full and to let go of your fears. To search for meaning, to break routines and to go deeper. To make a difference. To not be alone.

To dream. Maybe even to change the world.
